

Desire

Desire is the spark plug in the motor running in your life. No desire and no life. Many say - when you grow in awareness - one feels no desire. Desire is a God given aspect which exists in all. For a highly evolved soul, the desire might be to evolve higher and discover more of themselves. For others, desire may be something else. But do the Cells desire. What does your body desire? What does the mind desire?

Your cells desire to be in unity consciousness by bringing all parts of you into a coherent state of Beingness. Your body desires to be in Oneness and in harmony with the Soul it is housing.

Your mind desires to experience and express the highest truths of yourself in its self expression through the body. When one observes one's mind, body and Soul, and is in Unity (body, mind and soul) the highest desire is created and that is the Evolution of the Divine within. Desire can be classified into three broad categories. Lower chakra desires, Heart space desires, Mind/intellect desires. Depending on the nature of the desires, you hold on your emotional body, the atoms in the body changes and the frequencies in the organs shifts.

There are seven cavities in your brain structures and these relate to the thought structures. These cavities are fed by the Moon, Sun, Stars, Venusians, Elohims, Seraphim, and the seven Gods of the Overworld.

Depending on the strength of your thoughts and where it is coming from (which part of you) these seven forces of your brain creates intention and through intention, you create actions and manifestation is the outcome.

So reflect on your desires If you state that I do not have any desires - that itself is a desire - not to have any desires. Every moment your soul and organs creates energy of desires for it is in the basic nature of Soul to desire to know and express more of yourself. In other words, no desire and you create no intention. With out intention, you never grow and you sail as the wind blows never reaching your goal, which is Oneness.
